MODERN MEDICAL HITS HOME RUN WITH MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Columbus, OH—Modern Medical Inc., of Lewis Center, Ohio, is proud to announce Major League Baseball (MLB) has joined its team.

Modern Medical, founded in 1986 on the premise of providing outstanding service, will be offering workers' compensation pharmacy benefits services to the MLB organization.

MLB, which is comprised of 30 major league clubs, includes managers, coaches, athletic trainers, umpires and other staff members. Modern Medical's program will cover thousands of MLB employees.

"In sports, injuries are a part of the business," said Anthony Avitabile, director of industry risk management and financial reporting for MLB. "If our people are injured, we want the best possible care. That is why we selected Modern Medical. They were able to tailor services to meet our program needs. As a result, we're getting exceptional care and service, while expecting to reduce overall pharmacy costs."

"Modern Medical has been a leader in the workers' compensation industry for decades; but we aren't about being the biggest," said Joe Favazzo, president/CEO of Modern Medical. "Our philosophy is simple. We focus on providing customized solutions that best benefit our clients. "

Modern Medical currently serves customers across the nation, providing a full range of workers' compensation offerings to employers, third-party administrators, insurance carriers and managed care organizations. Its well-established vendor and pharmacy networks and state-of-the-art online account management system offer streamlined service, customized reporting and cost savings.
